DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The listing of references in the specification is not a proper information disclosure statement. 37 CFR 1.98(b) requires a list of all patents, publications, or other information submitted for consideration by the Office, and MPEP § 609.04(a) states, "the list may not be incorporated into the specification but must be submitted in a separate paper." Therefore, unless the references have been cited by the examiner on form PTO-892, they have not been considered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by WO 01/85291 A1. WO '297 shows a pipe separator for separation of fluids, for example separation of oil, gas and water in connection with the extraction and production of oil and gas from formations under the sea bed (pages 1, lines 29-32), comprising an extended, tubular separator body (1) that has a diameter at the inlet and outlet ends that is mainly equal to or slightly greater than the diameter of the transport pipe (page 1 & 9, lines 5-7 & 1-8 respectively) to which the separator body is connected (fig 4), a separator device, expediently a cyclone, arranged upstream of the separator body for separation of any gas present (page 2, lines 14-17) and an electrostatic coalescer 5/6 arranged in connection with the pipe separator, where the electrostatic coalescer 5/6 is incorporated in and constitutes an integrated part of the separator body (fig 2).

As concerns claim 2, WO '297 shows that a water seal is arranged downstream of the separator element (1) and a device is arranged in connection with the water seal for drainage of the water that is separated out in the separator element (fig 4).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over WO 01/85291 A1 alone.

As concerns claim 3, WO '297 does not show the separator element (1) comprises two or more coalescers arranged in series; however, Examiner takes official notice that it would have been an obvious matter of design choice to modify the combination to include two or more coalescers to improve the separation efficiency.

6. Claims 4-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over WO 01/85291 A1 in view of Berry et al 6,136,174. As concerns claims 4-5, WO '297 shows that the cyclone is arranged but does not show it in connection with a throttle valve that produces high shear for the fluid. However, shows a similar separator element using an electrostatic coalescer having a cyclone upstream with a throttle valve and the cyclone is arranged in close proximity to the inlet of the separator element (col 3, lines 43-45). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify WO '297, as taught by Berry, to include this cyclone arrangement to improve the versatility of the operations (col 3, lines 46-47).

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
